Who should attend these courses?

- People already working in an environment where legal knowledge or skills are required; and
- Legal assistants who want to specialise.

About us

The South African School of Paralegal Studies, which is conveniently situated next to the railway station in Rondebosch, was established in 1992 to provide specialized training for legal support staff of professional practices, financial institutions, corporations and those wanting to embark upon a legal career.

Certain courses conducted by the School and its sister entity, THE SOUTH AFRICAN INSTITUTE OF LEGAL TRAINING also appeal to the self-employed businessperson or owners/managers of small to medium companies. In 1997 a new course was introduced aimed at providing matriculants with basic legal knowledge as well as secretarial skills enabling them to start a career as a paralegal.

Our Chief-Principal, Dr Günter Pabst, is a board member of the Standards Giving Body for Legal Education & Training at SAQA (South African Qualifications Authority).

What is a paralegal?

Paralegals or Legal Assistants are people who are able to work in a legal environment. Paralegals have a sound basic knowledge of the legal principles relevant to the field in which they are working and as a result are able to work independently to perform legal tasks. Although not qualified to represent clients, Paralegals perform various important legal tasks and other administrative duties in the office. In an attorney's practice, for example, the Paralegal relieves the workload of the attorney by performing much of the routine legal work or research.

Our Mission: "Training paralegals to play a vital role in the South African legal system."
